What does climate change look like to you? How is it affecting the world around you? Who are the winners and losers of climate change? We are looking for creative photos that raise awareness of the ever-increasingly urgent climate crisis and inspire Georgians to take action.

As a part of the second-annual Global Climate Action Symposium, the Atlanta Global Studies Center, Consulate General of the Federal Republic of Germany Atlanta, and the Georgia Department of Education are partnering together to fight climate change in the state of Georgia through a student art and photography contest.

Students may submit a photo, scan in artwork (painting, drawing, collage, etc.) or take a picture of a three-dimensional piece.

Submissions are free. Only one submission per contestant.
High resolution photos must be submitted with a fifty words or fewer caption that highlights your unique perspective on climate change and explains your submission. Captions should be in English and may include foreign language captions as well.

(K-3), (4-6) (7-9) (10-12) (13-18)
